

Seeing more clearly

Regarding your editorial "Words matter" (Aug. 24), might I point out that there is one important advantage that Sen. Barack Obama holds over Sen. John McCain?

Obama recognizes that there are problems with the economy. McCain's position is that the economy is strong and that the best thing to do is to change nothing about the disastrous policies of the current administration.

Formulating solutions to a problem requires you first identify that there is a problem.
